Their support was really reassuring.

Advocacy: A guide for professionals in East Riding
What is an advocate?

Advocates are independent professionals who work with people to help them understand their options, know their rights and say what they want.

This helps to make sure that people are involved as much as possible in decisions about their health and care.

Your duty to refer

Advocacy is a statutory right for eligible people. The Mental Capacity Act and Care Act state that you must refer eligible people for advocacy. The Mental Health Act states that you must make eligible people aware of how to access advocacy.

Who is eligible?

Use the grid in this leaflet to find out who you must refer.

If you are unsure about eligibility, or have questions about advocacy types, contact us.

When to refer

Make a referral whenever a person is in any of the following situations:
- detained under the Mental Health Act (even if on leave of absence from the hospital) but excluding people under short term sections 4, 5, 135 and 136
- a conditionally discharged patient
- subject to a Community Treatment Order (CTO)
- subject to guardianship
- being considered for S58A treatment (including informal patients and people under 18)
- being considered for S57 treatment (including informal patients)

Independent Mental Health Advocacy (IMHA)

Advocate’s role

To support the person to:
- understand their rights and options
- understand decisions about treatment
- understand the parts of the Mental Health Act which apply to them
- have their views and wishes heard in decisions about their care or treatment
- raise anything they are unhappy with relating to their care or treatment

Care Act Advocacy

Advocate’s role

To support the person to:
- understand their rights under the Care Act
- be fully involved in the assessment, review or planning process

Independent Mental Capacity Advocacy (IMCA)

Advocate’s role

As far as possible, to:
- make sure that the person’s views and wishes are taken into account in the best interests decision
- support the person to be involved in the decision, or to represent them if necessary
- uphold the person’s rights in relation to that decision

We can also provide paid Relevant Person’s Representatives (RPRs), carer’s advocacy and general advocacy.
What do advocates do?

An advocate can support someone to:

● communicate their views and wishes
● understand their rights
● understand any processes and decisions they are subject to
● understand the options they have
● make their own choices
● challenge a decision

Even when someone can’t tell their advocate what they want, our advocates will use a range of approaches to establish their views and wishes as far as possible and secure their rights.

In some circumstances, an advocate has the right to access medical or care records on behalf of the person they are supporting. An advocate may write a report that must be taken into consideration by professionals.

An advocate does not:

● offer counselling or befriending
● offer legal advice
● tell people they support what decisions to make
● tell health or social care professionals what decisions to make
