

Their support was really reassuring.

Children's advocacy: A guide for professionals
in Lincolnshire

What is an advocate?

Advocates are independent professionals who work with people to help them understand their options, know their rights and say what they want.

This helps to make sure that people are involved as much as possible in decisions about their health and care.

Your duty to refer

Advocacy is a statutory right for eligible people. The Mental Capacity Act and Care Act state that you must refer eligible people for advocacy. The Mental Health Act states that you must make eligible people aware of how to access advocacy.

Who is eligible?

Use the grid in this leaflet to find out who you must refer.

If you are unsure about eligibility, or have questions about advocacy types, contact us.

Looked-after children's advocacy	Child Protection advocacy
When to refer Make a referral: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● before making a decision about a looked-after child or young person's life, if they may have a difficulty expressing their wishes and feelings about this decision ● when a looked-after child or young person asks for help to understand their rights and options and say what they think ● when a young person or care leaver wants to make a representation or complaint about their care Looked-after children and care leavers can also self-refer.	When to refer Make a referral if a young person over the age of 11 is subject to a Child Protection Conference.
Advocate's role To support the child or young person to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● understand their rights and options ● say what they think ● have their views and wishes heard in decisions about their care and where they live ● raise anything they are unhappy with relating to their care 	Advocate's role To support the child or young person by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● meeting them before the conference to talk about their wishes and feelings ● explaining to them about the meeting, their rights and what will happen ● supporting them to communicate how they feel ● coming to the conference with them, if they want to go, or attending on their behalf to explain their wishes and feelings if they do not want to go ● helping them to understand what decisions are made about their life

For these services, you can refer children and young people up to the age of 18, or up to the age of 25 if they have a learning disability.

In Lincolnshire we also offer Care Act advocacy and Independent Mental Capacity Advocacy (IMCA) to young people who are transitioning to adult services.

What do advocates do?

An advocate can support someone to:

- communicate their views and wishes
- understand their rights
- understand any processes and decisions they are subject to
- understand the options they have
- make their own choices
- challenge a decision

Even when someone can't tell their advocate what they want, our advocates will use a range of approaches to establish their views and wishes as far as possible and secure their rights.

In some circumstances, an advocate has the right to access medical or care records on behalf of the person they are supporting. An advocate may write a report that must be taken into consideration by professionals.

An advocate does not:

- offer counselling or befriending
- offer legal advice
- tell people they support what decisions to make
- tell health or social care professionals what decisions to make

How to make a referral

Go online to find services near you and make a referral
voiceability.org/make-a-referral

You can also request a referral form by emailing helpline@voiceability.org

If you have questions about eligibility or advocacy types, contact us.

Freephone:

0300 303 1660

Email: helpline@voiceability.org

Website: voiceability.org

About VoiceAbility

We've been supporting people to have their say in decisions about their health, care and wellbeing for almost 40 years. We're an independent charity and one of the UK's largest providers of advocacy and involvement services.