

Use Your Power!

The government must use its new powers to get people with a learning disability, autism or both out of mental health hospitals.

There are too many people with a learning disability, autism or both in mental health hospitals in England.

We are shocked and angry about the lack of care, bullying and abuse.

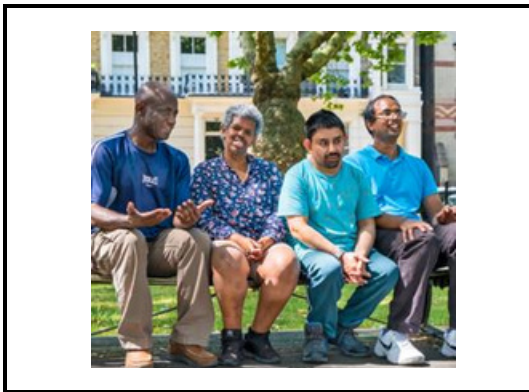

People with a learning disability, autism or both have the right to live where they want. Not be locked away!

The government's new powers

The government has not got as many people out of mental health hospitals as it said it would.

We want better support for people to live in the community where they are safer and happier.

We want the government to use their new powers in the Health and Care Act 2022 to do something about this.

We are asking the government to use their power to direct NHS England to get more people out of mental health hospitals.

We cannot wait any longer

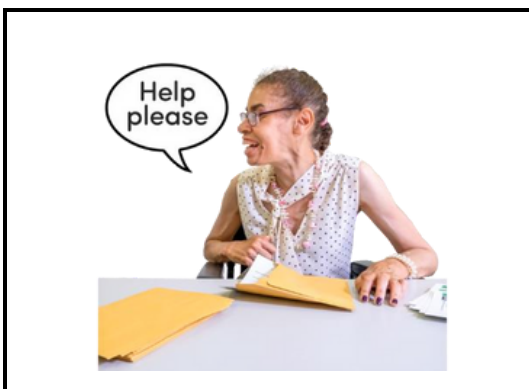

It has been over ten years since Winterbourne View. But there is still abuse and poor care.

We cannot wait any longer. The government must use every power they can.

Or more people with a learning disability, autism or both will stay locked away and get hurt.

We want your help to change this.

Sign our petition

We are asking each political party to say they will use the power to direct NHS England.

This should be one of their manifesto promises for the General Election in 2024.

Please sign our petition by copying this link into your internet browser:
www.change.org/p/use-your-power-stop-the-detention-of-people-with-a-learning-disability-autistic-people

Lots of people and organisations support this call.
It is growing louder!